Children's Book of Art

by DK ISBN/ASIN: 978-0744082760

→ RATIONALE: This is a nice overview of global art history with some different pieces shown and discussed. It also has close-up sections explaining how to do things in art such as mixing colors or making a fresco, etc. This will be referenced throughout the course for different techniques and extra examples of genres. However, this will be a second resource and all topics will be taught in a way that students can see images online if they do not have the book on hand. This book was chosen due to its minuscule amount of nudity compared to other art books geared to teens.

Introducing the New Testament: A Historical, Literary, and Theological Survey

by Mark Allan Powell ISBN/ASIN: 978-0801099601

→ RATIONALE: An overview of the NT for older students and educators providing book by book background and major themes to be used for years. The chapters can be read in any order allowing for use anywhere in the reading rotation. Powell presents various perspectives on interpretive issues to encourage engagement with ideas but does not attempt to resolve all the issues. Artwork through the centuries adds a unique element that illustrates themes and demonstrates the influence of the NT over the centuries.

They Fought Like Demons: Women Soldiers in the Civil War

by De Anne Blanton & Lauren M. Cook ISBN/ASIN: 978-1400033157

→ RATIONALE: Most people will never know the truth behind people like Albert Cashier, Frances Clayton, or the countless other aliases that women took on so that they could join the fight for causes that they believed in. The authors dive into military archives with the goal to uncover the many stories of women who stepped into the role of a male soldier in the 1800s. And with engaging chapters and well-rounded research, the student will be able to see the war through the eyes of women as they took to the battlefield alongside brothers, sons, fathers, and husbands. These women would come to be known later on—courtesy of documents from soldiers—as soldiers who fought like demons.

A History of Canada in Ten Maps: Epic Stories of Charting a Mysterious Land

by Adam Shoalts ISBN/ASIN: 978-0143193982

→ RATIONALE: This book tells the story of the discovery and development of the land that would become Canada by exploring the creation and usage of ten significant maps. It is an innovative and engaging approach to Canadian history, written by an academic and modern-day adventurer who has followed many of the routes taken by the explorers he includes in this book. It shows how history writing can create a more vivid representation of the past when it draws on biography, story-telling, geography, and cartography.

NOTE: This book will be used over two years in high school (Rotation 2 and Rotation 3). In 2026–2027, students will read the second half of the book.

Making of Canada: An Epic History in Twenty Extraordinary Lives

by Greg Koabel ISBN/ASIN: 978-1998365241

→ RATIONALE: In this engaging book, Greg Koabel challenges the notion that pre-Confederation Canada unfolded in a linear fashion and instead suggests that nation-building involved greater "regional, national, and human diversity" than is typically acknowledged. To illustrate this argument, Koabel introduces his readers to twenty episodes significant to Canada's history but whose major players have been largely forgotten. These biographical vignettes give readers a more personal – and memorable – connection to Canadian history.

How Different It Was: Canadians at the Time of Confederation

by Michael J. Goodspeed ISBN/ASIN: 978-1459736948

→ RATIONALE: One of the key lessons of history is that the past was – to greater or lesser degrees – fundamentally different than the present, and this is shown clearly in Michael Goodspeed's book, How Different it Was: Canadians at the Time of Confederation. Goodspeed provides a multi-faceted account of the experiences of Canadians in the 1860s, exploring factors such as geographical differences, cultural practices, family dynamics, religious observances, scientific beliefs, leisure activities, habits, and attitudes, as well as the burgeoning nation of Canada's place in the wider nineteenth-century geopolitical arena. He draws heavily on primary source material, and the book is full of historical photographs and documents.

Unfolding in four perspectives, this novel explores how the turmoil and the conflict affect each member of the family differently. The narrative weaves historical events and people (including the author's own ancestor) into the lives of this one family, and it is a thoroughly researched, richly detailed, and beautifully written account of the great upheaval faced by the Red River Colony in the years after Confederation.

The story traces the life of the warrior Okonkwo: his upbringing and adulthood, his rise to prominence and tragic fall, and finally his banishment and return to find his home forever changed. Written in English from an authentically African perspective, Achebe's novel directly challenges Western narratives of colonialism and stereotypes of Africa, yet eschews any simple resolutions. | | |

The Tempest

by William Shakespeare ISBN/ASIN: 978-0743482837

→ RATIONALE: This play is often called a Tragicomedy because it has both comedic and tragic elements. It is about an overthrown Duke and his daughter who are exiled on an island. The play addresses the themes of power, betrayal, magic, slavery, and the restoration of relationships.

The Winter's Tale

by William Shakespeare ISBN/ASIN: 978-1982122508

→ RATIONALE: The Winter's Tale is a play divided into two halves—tragedy and redemption. It begins in the court of Leontes, King of Sicilia, whose sudden and irrational jealousy leads him to accuse his wife Hermione of betrayal. His actions cause devastating consequences, including the loss of family, friendship, and trust. This play emphasizes the power of jealousy to destroy, but the greater power of love to restore.

The Word Made Fresh

by Abram Van Engen ISBN/ASIN: 978-0802883605

→ RATIONALE: Van Engen lays out a beautiful relational approach to poetry which resonates deeply with Mason. As he models a love for poetry and gives insights into how to enjoy, understand, and read poetry (or start on the journey!), students will continue growing their own delight. Lesson plans pair readings from the book with practical exercises.

NOTE: The first section of the book (the more practical part) is scheduled in the lesson plans, but we recommend the whole book – which concludes with a theological reflection on the value of poetry – as a resource for parents and teachers.

The Lightning Dreamer: Cuba's Greatest Abolitionist

by Margarita Engle ISBN/ASIN: 978-0544541122

→ RATIONALE: This book is a poetic fictionalized account of famous Cuban abolitionist and author Gertrudis Gómez Avellaneda (1814-1873). Since Avellaneda wrote in Spanish, this biography allows students to get a glimpse of a significant 19th century author outside the English canon. Engle's style also provides opportunities for students to consider the differences between poetry and prose and experiment with point of view in connected composition assignments.
