About the Course

This course includes the following topic(s): Canadian History: Grades 11-12, World History: Grades 10-12, Ancient History: Grades 10-12

About Canadian History: Grades 11-12

Read about Canadian history from 1800-1900 through biographies, primary source documents, history spines, and historical fiction. View images and reference atlases and maps to set the people and events in their time and place. Update History Charts and Book of Centuries.

About World History: Grades 10-12

Read about world history from 1800-1900. View images and reference atlases and maps to set the people and events in their time and place. Update History Charts and Book of Centuries.

About Ancient History: Grades 10-12

Drawing on material culture, primary sources, and wider overviews, this course delves into the time period from 100 BC to 350 AD.

Placement & Combining Tips

Canadian History: Grades 11-12

This course is the same for Grade 11 and Grade 12.

Ancient History: Grades 10-12

Inquisitive 9th graders could enjoy this course, but the main texts have an advanced reading level, so students would likely want to move at a slower pace.

How To Approach

Recap

- Take a second to recall what you read previously in the same book or topic.
- If the previous passage is difficult to remember, try looking back at any chapter/section headings or illustrations or reading the first paragraph to jog the memory.

Read

- Read the selection assigned OR read for the number of minutes allocated, leaving time for narration and mapwork. Use whichever guide (i.e., pages or minutes) works best for you. You want to read enough to be interesting, but not so much that you feel overwhelmed.
- If a book is challenging for you as a student, try stopping to narrate to yourself silently for a minute every now and then to make sure you are tracking. You might also want to read aloud to yourself. Or you might want to listen to an audiobook version of the text and read along with it.
- If a book is an easy read, enjoy the ride!
- Keep an eye out for quotes to put in your commonplace book or events or characters to put down in your Book of Centuries.

Narrate

- Process and integrate your reading by narrating either orally or in writing. Some lesson plans will give you a suggestion of how best to narrate.
- To keep yourself on track, you might want to set a timer, so you stop reading with enough time to narrate.

Connect

- After your narration, think about how what you read connects to other subjects, other books, and other things you've read, watched, or seen in the past or present.
- Share any ideas that are particularly interesting to you with your fellow classmates, teachers, parents, friends, or others. You might even want to do a bit more reading or research on something on your own time in the afternoon or evenings.

Teacher Note

These lessons are written directly to the student, but to assist them throughout the year, please read through this section and the lesson plans so you are familiar with the instructions and flow of the lessons. Accountability components are added to facilitate teacher/student discussion and growing independence.

Those educating at home might pick one or two history lessons to read aloud with their students to keep up the habit of oral narration and foster conversation and relationship, and then simply give students these lesson plans and the rest of the books and check in with them throughout the term for conversation, support, and accountability.

It is valuable for those in a classroom setting to also have a mix of lessons that students complete themselves silently and others read aloud and narrated together. Classroom settings lend themselves well to additional discussion and sharing at the end of lessons, after everyone has narrated either together or independently in writing.

WEEK 1 30m World History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 1

Materials: When America First Met China

→ INTRO

One of the most important actions taken when creating a new nation is establishing trade with other countries. As a newly founded nation, that is exactly what the United States of America set out to do. The United States traded for things like silk, gold, and tea, while other nations traded for everything from sea otter and seal pelts to sandalwood, opium, cotton, and tortoiseshell. As the United States navigated new waters—both literally and figuratively—they would come into contact with a mighty trade nation that had a lot to offer them, including the ever-important tea that had become a household essential. However, China had its own rules and regulations as well as its own system of justice that was very different from the United States.

As you read through the chapter, we invite you to ponder what it must have been like to navigate these new waters and to meet new peoples whose way of life was so different from yours. What are the things you see in the text that surprise you? What things challenged your way of thinking? You will reflect on these questions after the reading.

→ ANNOTATE

When America First Met China is a non-fiction book, which makes it a good candidate for annotation. While you are reading through the text, you may encounter an interesting point or main idea that you want to underline. You could put a question mark next to a statement you find unclear. You may place sticky notes on a page that you want to return to. Experiment with different ways to engage with the information in the book. Some students will record themselves reading or talking about the reading. Others may start a discussion with an acquaintance about the material. Try different ways and see what works and what doesn't work for you. You can discuss your findings with your teacher.

→ READ & NARRATE

Ch.6 p.146-160 "The return of peace" - "exotic name 'bêche-de-mer.'"

→ MAP WORK

Familiarize yourself with the map at the beginning of When America First Met China.

→ WRITE

Answer the following questions in 3 paragraphs: What are the things you see in the text that surprise you? What things challenged your way of thinking? What things made you uncomfortable and why?

• STUDENT TIP

Be sure to add some people, events, and drawings of artifacts to your book of centuries. Mark potential items with a Post-it note as you read so you remember to find something when you sit down to work in your book.

Introduction, David Thompson

Materials: A History of Canada in Ten Maps

∞ GATHER SUPPLIES: You will need a notebook for Canadian history where you will be writing and drawing. We recommend dot grid and blank notebooks, but any kind will do.

PREP: Print a copy of the blank map of Canada without borders. You can use this together with your notebook to mark places and chart routes throughout this course.

• EXTRA HELPING

If you would like to watch a linear, narrative recounting of the historical events of 1800-1900 to supplement your studies this term, look for episodes of CBC's Canada: A People's History (2000-2001) at your local library or online. The following episodes cover the period of our history rotation this year:

Episode 5: A Question of Loyalties (1775-1815)

Episode 6: The Pathfinders (1670-1850)

Episode 7: Rebellion and Reform (1815-1850)

1900. The five books are intended to work together to give a chronological overview of this historical period. Two of the books - The History of Canada in Ten Maps and The Making of Canada - we are starting partway through, since the first halves were read during Rotation 2. If you did not read them during Rotation 2, you may wish to read the first halves on your own time; however, you can also start partway through without missing content for this course.

At the beginning of this century, Canada was a collection of separate British colonies and was vulnerable to invasion by the newly independent nation of the United States to the south. Yet by the end of the century, Canada was a self-governing country of seven provinces and two territories, with a transcontinental railway that stretched from coast to coast. This class will explore many of the changes that took place during this time.

→ DISCUSS

What do you remember about Canadian History before 1800? What do you already know about the period between 1800-1900? Jot down a few notes for yourself of any people, places, or events that you think might be relevant. Also, write down any questions you might have about this period of Canadian history.

→ READ

1. The Canadian Encyclopedia

As you work through the course, you should find time to fill out a History Chart for the years 1800-1900, or continue to update your Book of Centuries if you have one. The Canadian Encyclopedia is an excellent source for research and information to add to your notebooking.

∞ Article Link: David Thompson Biography

2. The History of Canada in Ten Maps

p.227-236 "In the dead of winter" - "until the twentieth century."

→ NARRATE

Narrate in a way that helps you interact with the ideas in the reading. For some, that might be narrating orally or silently to yourself, in writing, by drawing a map, a diagram or a picture, writing a diary/letter from the point of view of one of the characters, describing what happened, or writing a bulleted list of points and questions. For others, it might be helpful to make marks in the book as you read and then narrate as you look at what you marked in the chapter. Experiment and see what works well for you, and you can vary your approach week to week. Also, strive to make connections to ideas, events, and people you have come across in previous readings you have done.

→ DISCUSS

Most lessons will include optional questions for further discussion, written response, or reflection.

- What made David Thompson such a successful cartographer and explorer? How much was his own skill, and how much was it his willingness to heed and learn from indigenous assistance, knowledge, and practices?
- Why was David Thompson's work so important for fur trading companies and the government?

 Materials: A History of Canada in Ten Maps

→ ANNOTATE

As your ability to read higher-level books in high school grows, it is helpful to learn new ways to interact with the text while you are reading to help you grasp what the author is saying. Non-fiction books are usually good candidates for annotating while you read. Maybe you want to underline the main ideas or interesting points. Maybe you want to put a question mark in the margin if something is unclear. Think about how to help yourself engage with the information in the book to make it your own. Experiment with different ways to do that. Some students do best by recording themselves talking about the reading, while others may need to discuss the material with another person. Whatever you do, your annotations should help you to further solidify the main points or ideas in your mind. Write down any questions, comments, or connections that arise from your review of your annotations after reading. Try different ways and discuss your observations about what works well and what doesn't with your teacher.

Explore ways that might be most helpful for you as you read each week. Advances in technology make many more annotation options available to serve us and our various ways of processing. Some might do great with a pencil and a book, while others might benefit from colors, Post-its, or speech-to-text options.

Linked are two documents to give you some more ideas for what it means to annotate a text. Charlotte Mason talked about ways to use books in School Education on p.180-181 if you are interested in reading her words on the topic, too.

Today's reading and the next are shorter to allow you time to read the documents and practice annotating. For today, if you are new to this, start simply by putting a mark in the margin or a Post-it flag when you come across a main idea or an important point the author is making. For others who have been doing this already, see what new ways you might want to experiment with this term.

WEEK 1 40m Ancient History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 2

The Late Republic

📁 Materials: Ancient Empires

→ INTRO

Rome was founded in 753 BC, and it became a Republic in 509 BC. The Roman Republic had been involved in many wars. The most famous of these wars are known as the three Punic Wars. The Third Punic War was fought around 149-146 BC. During the Third Punic War, Rome would clash with a sovereign territory known as Carthage and ultimately would raze it to the ground. Rome would kill most of its male inhabitants and sell its women and children into slavery. With the defeat of Carthage, it would seem that Roman power was complete, as no other nation could stand in the way of its expansion.

However, the Roman Republic had internal issues. Its political and military leaders were corrupt, and despite its incredible growth, the Republic found itself in trouble. These political and military leaders were grasping for more power afforded them by their Republic governmental system. There were also internal struggles from people groups who refused to adapt to life under their new conquerors.

Why was Lower Canada a more strategically critical region to protect, according to Koabel? And why might French Canadians have been hesitant at first to help defend it? What changed?
- Why was the Battle at Châteauguay a distinctly Canadian episode of the War of 1812? What are some of the possible reasons why it is not commemorated by English-speaking or French-speaking Canadians today?

A historian named Ian Barrow wrote a short history of the East India Company, which operated at the end of the sixteenth century all the way through the middle of the nineteenth. In his book, he writes about the beginning of this company, saying, "Toward the end of the sixteenth century, a group of English merchants based in London realized that there was an opportunity to make money in the spice trade." The British East India Company would exist for over 200 years and end up becoming one of the largest monopolies on trade. Additionally, it was known for having its own armies. The army at times reached 260,000 soldiers strong. The British government began to see the company for the threat it was and eliminated its monopoly in 1833. From then on, trade would look very different. The parliament would appoint people to government positions,

Summer Rambles: Anna Brownell Jameson

Materials: Early Voices

→ RECAP

What do you recall about the Upper Canada Rebellions of 1837-1838 from the last reading?

→ INTRO

In your reading from the last lesson, you learned that Ogle Gowan stood for election in 1834 with Attorney General Robert Jameson. Today, we will read an account written by Jameson's wife Anna, who joined him in Canada for several years before returning to England. This is the first of a number of selections we will read this year from Early Voices: Portraits of Canada by Women Writers, 1639-1914. This book is used over several years in high school, and, since the selections are assigned chronologically, the book is read out of order.

How long do you wait for your packages? Perhaps if you and your family have fast shipping, you'll only have to wait one or two days for your order to arrive at your doorstep. In the 1800s, it would take weeks for one ship to get to the other side of the world and pick up the items, and then weeks to return. So, as one can imagine, there was a need to be the fastest ship out there in order to get the items back home and sold as quickly as possible. WEEK 9 30m World History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 9

→ INTRO

One of the horrible parts about reading through history is coming face-to-face with the reality of sinful humanity. John Fea writes, "Indeed, anyone who studies the past realizes that there are no heroes in history. While people may perform heroic acts, all humans are tainted by sin and are susceptible to acting in ways that preference themselves over others and God. Historians understand, perhaps better than most, the reality of the pain, suffering, injustice, anger, and vice brought on by sin. In other words, they understand the tragic dimensions of life."

Exploitation is just one of the many injustices taking place in the 1800s. As you read through the chapter, you are allowed to feel heartbroken, angry, and disappointed at the treatment of those who are also made in God's image. Both belief in Christ and in the depravity of humanity can help us better navigate history. As John Fea writes, "Similarly, a belief in depravity helps us to better explain the human condition—the restlessness, the search for meaning, and the prideful ambition that has defined much of the past, especially in the modern era. Augustine was quite correct when he opened his Confessions with the famous words, 'Our hearts are restless until they rest in you.'"

WEEK 1 30m World History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 13

Materials: Erebus

→ INTRO

What happens when nations find themselves with war vessels, but no wars? For 1800s Britain, the answer was to send its ships on exploration missions. The Erebus was just one of the ships that made the transition from military vessel to a vessel used for research and exploration. The captains and crew of the vessel changed over the many years it spent on the seas.

In Erebus, you will read a book about a legendary ship. However, there is another benefit to Michael Palin's book, which makes it a helpful read as well as an enjoyable one. Erebus does not just share the story of the ship itself, but of the world in which this ship sailed. As you read through Erebus, take note of the names being mentioned in each chapter.

I also invite you to adventure with the people on Erebus and on the HMS Terror. Pay attention to the letters and journals that are being mentioned and remember that these were real people who experienced a world very unlike our own. And yet, you'll also see a world that is very familiar too.

→ ANNOTATE

Erebus is a non-fiction book, which makes it a good candidate for annotation. While you are reading through the text, you may encounter an interesting point or main idea that you want to underline. You could put a question mark next to a statement you find unclear. You may place sticky notes on a page that you want to return to. Experiment with different ways to engage with the information in the book. Some students will record themselves reading or talking about the reading. Others may start a discussion with an acquaintance about the material. Try different ways and see what works and what doesn't work for you. You can discuss your findings with your teacher.

→ READ & NARRATE

Prologue-Ch.1 p.1-16

→ WRITE

Write two paragraphs about the world figures and the events that you've read about in chapter one of Erebus. Who has appeared in the chapter? Why are they important? What is the historical setting of the book?

leader? What strategies did he use to ensure British Columbia remained British?

- Based on the situation in British Columbia, can you identify some larger issues that might have spurred politicians to push for Confederation over the following decade? How would you describe the relationship between British North America and the United States as it unfolded in this one location?
- Koabel states that "the instability and disorder of 1858 pushed Douglas and Begbie to weave the infrastructure of a proper colony out of whole cloth. In this, they were largely successful" (278). What do you think he means by this? Consider that to "weave something out of whole cloth" means a fabrication or a creation of something with little basis in reality.

WEEK 1 30m Ancient History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 25

How do Christians Read Classics?

Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

Can Christians read Greco-Roman pagan literature for spiritual formation? This is the question that Nadya Williams asks in the introduction of her book. As you read through the book, think through the above question. Do you agree with her? Why or why not?

→ ANNOTATE

Christians Reading Classics is a non-fiction book, which makes it a good candidate for annotation. While you are reading through the text, you may encounter an interesting point or main idea that you want to underline. You could put a question mark next to a statement you find unclear. You may place sticky notes on a page that you want to return to. Experiment with different ways to engage with the information in the book. Some students will record themselves reading or talking about the reading. Others may start a discussion with an acquaintance about the material. WEEK 1 30m Canadian History: Grades 11-12 - Lesson 26

George Taylor Denison

Materials: The Making of Canada

→ RECAP

What do you recall about James Douglas's role in the history of British Columbia from the last reading?

→ READ & ANNOTATE

p.279-291 "Canadians learned early on" - "the North-West Territory."

→ NARRATE

Choose the best way for you to narrate what you read.

Term 2

→ DISCUSS

- Why is George Taylor Denison III a notable "example of the lengths to which Canadian anti-Americanism can extend" (279)? How did Denison's anti-Americanism lead him to support a side in the Civil War whose cause was in opposition to the widely-held values of British North America?
- Why were some hoping to expand the American Civil War into an Anglo-American War? What strategies did they use, and what were the motivations behind them?
- What did you learn from this chapter about the relationship between Canada and the United States in the years leading up to Confederation? How were the conferences in Charlottetown and Quebec City very different reactions to the same concerns that caused Denison to undertake the Georgian scheme?

WEEK 1 40m Ancient History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 26

Learning from Plato and Aristotle

Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

Even though Plato and Aristotle lived during the time of the Greek empire, their influence on Roman culture cannot be understated. These two men have influenced both ancient world thinking and modern-day thinking about truth, virtue, the beginning of life, and other subjects. The apostles, early church fathers and mothers, and later Christian writers would all contend with Platonic and Aristotelian thought in their writings. As you read through this chapter, think about the amount of influence these two men had and why it's so important for Christians to read their works.

→ ANNOTATE

Don't forget to annotate as you read.

→ READ & NARRATE

Ch.8 p.101-113

→ WRITE & DISCUSS

In three paragraphs, answer the three reflection questions located on p.113 of the reading. Discuss your answers.

WEEK 3 40m Canadian History: Grades 11-12 - Lesson 29

Canada at the Time of Confederation

Materials: How Different It Was

→ INTRO

The History of Canada in Ten Maps and The Making of Canada both end right before Canada's Confederation in 1867. What do you know about this event in Canada's history? Can you name any of the major historical figures involved?

The next book you will read in this course details what life was like for Canadians in the mid-nineteenth century, during the decade of Confederation.

→ READ & ANNOTATE

p.9-19 "Walter Ferguson was a farmer" - "attitudes to its colonies."
This book provides you with an excellent opportunity to practice note-taking and finding information for a Century Chart or Book of Centuries. Look for important figures and significant dates and add them to a note-keeping format of your own choosing.

WEEK 4 30m World History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 16

Materials: Erebus

→ INTRO

Have you ever wondered what it was like to live on an exploration ship like the Erebus? This week's reading explores the lives of the many people who chose to embark on these voyages and how their lives looked day to day. As you read through the section, think about the many reasons that people chose to take up these positions and what it was like for them on a day-to-day basis. Was the legacy of exploration worth it?

WEEK 4 30m Ancient History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 31

Cicero, Caesar, and Political Rhetoric in the Roman Republic

 Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

The political sphere of the Roman Empire is a cut-throat business. So much so that if one person is elected, their life might be immediately in danger as their opponent may plot an assassination for the winning man. Such is the case of Cicero. As you'll be able to see in the reading, these documents tell us about so much more than just an assassination attempt.

Cato and Livy in The Roman Republic

Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

Nadya Williams writes, "Homer's epics and Herodotus's histories celebrated heroes. But this is not Sparta; this is Rome. The heroes here are Romans first--or, at least, so Cato dreamed. In the end, his approach to writing history didn't become an example that anyone else followed. And yet the broader goal of Cato's history--to make virtuous Roman men and women by showing them examples of the virtues to imitate--continued. WEEK 9 30m Ancient History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 41

Introducing Tacitus

Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

After Nero committed suicide in June of 68 AD, there began a time known as the Year of the Four Emperors, where Rome experienced a chaotic year of civil wars and crises because of a constant shift from one emperor to another. Tacitus would have been a teenager during this time, so it's understandable that he would grow up to be an orator, go into politics, and speak out against corrupt leadership. As you read through this chapter, think about how Christians should read these works.

WEEK 11 30m Ancient History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 45

Suetonius and Plutarch

Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

Nadya Williams writes, "In the early second century AD, shortly after the time when Tacitus ("the quiet") started writing his historical works, another man with a similar nickname—Gaius Suetonius Tranquillus ("the calm" or "the peaceful")—began a historical and literary experiment of his own." Suetonius's works would be gossipier and more tabloid-style than other popular writings of the time. And this kind of writing attracted a crowd. WEEK 11 40m Ancient History: Grades 10-12 - Lesson 46

Marcus Aurelius

Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

People in the Roman Empire were asking important questions about humanity, truth, virtue, and soul. Nadya Williams writes, "What is the nature of the soul dwelling within each human body? And what is the relationship of the soul to the body? The pre-Christian Greeks and Romans thought much about these questions, even though their answers ran up against the limits of pagan theology. Nevertheless, many of them were firmly convinced that a soul—some sort of intangible spiritual portion—inhabited the physical body." Apuleius and Marcus Aurelius would consider the soul in their writings. As you read through this chapter,

North African Converts

Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

What can we learn from Perpetua, the Bishop of Carthage, and Augustine? Nadya Williams writes, "The stories of these three converts appear at first glance so different. Perpetua, especially, is an outlier. What does a young nursing mother have in common with two of the most famous bishops and theologians of the early church? Can we even set Perpetua and her work on the same level as the brilliant and distinguished Augustine?" North African Converts to Christianity have left many different letters behind for Christians to read and learn from. Boethius and Philosophy

Materials: Christians Reading Classics

→ INTRO

Nadya Williams writes, "Alone in a dark, dank dungeon during the days of the Later Roman Empire, a man pensively leans over a scroll, quill in hand, trying to make do with the meager light available to him. It feels strange to be alone having only one's own words to keep company with for days and months. But someone who has read much is never alone; so it is with this man—the statesman and philosopher Boethius." You'll learn more about Boethius in your reading this week. Introduction to Early Church Writings and Clement

Materials: Early Christian Writings

→ INTRO

Imagine uncovering the writing of an Early Church Father as you sift through a monastic library in the East, or as you begin to use that writing as a wrapping paper for raw fish and seafood. That is the reality of some of these texts translated in this collection of Early Christian Writers. These texts offer the modern-day reader more than early church doctrine and theology; they also offer us insights into the issues that the early church was facing as it began to follow the teachings of Christ.

→ NOTE

The first- and second-century Christians are operating in a world wholly different than our own. They are operating in empires that have different values, virtues, and myths. Moreover, these people are trying to figure out Jesus, his relationship to God, and the connection of the Holy Spirit; and they are operating with the Septuagint (The Greek Translation of the Hebrew Bible), the Gospels, and some of the letters. Keep in mind that the canon of the Bible will not be official until the late fourth century.

As you read through these texts, take a moment to put your modern-day theological and biblical knowledge to the side. Listen to the words of these Christians. What are they asking? What are they teaching? Why might these be the questions that they are taking the time to answer? All of these questions can help us understand the early church world better and see where these early church writers are taking inspiration from.

Clement's Letters and Intro to Ignatius

Materials: Early Christian Writings

→ INTRO

There are many ways to measure the success of an emperor. One way is to measure the size of the nation that they ruled. It was under Emperor Trajan's rule that the Roman Empire reached its pinnacle in terms of territory.

But under his rule, Trajan would also persecute Christians. One such martyr would be Ignatius of Antioch, who was the third Bishop of Antioch after Peter. Ignatius would write a series of letters to cities under his leadership, guiding them with doctrinal and practical practices that would help them live out their Christian faith.

events that are happening alongside the events in Germany. You will read two chapters this year and finish the book next year.

→ ANNOTATE

Blood and Iron is a non-fiction book, which makes it a good candidate for annotation. While you are reading through the text, you may encounter an interesting point or main idea that you want to underline. You could put a question mark next to a statement you find unclear. You may place sticky notes on a page that you want to return to. Experiment with different ways to engage with the information in the book. Some students will record themselves reading or talking about the reading. Others may start a discussion with an acquaintance about the material. Try different ways and see what works and what doesn't work for you. You can discuss your findings with your teacher.

→ READ & NARRATE

Ch.1 p.15-36 beginning of chapter - "two more decades."

→ WRITE

Write about something you underlined or starred when you were annotating the reading.

Examination

Term 1

Ancient History: Grades 10-12

- Ancient Empires: In what ways does the Roman Republic remind you of your own country? In what ways is it different?
- Draw two pieces of art that you remember seeing this term. Briefly say what they are and describe them. What do you think they say about the cultures that they were a part of?

World History: Grades 10-12

- When America First Met China: Why was the invention of faster ships so important?
- When America First Met China: Describe the relationships between China and other countries in several paragraphs.

Canadian History: Grades 11-12

- (The History of Canada in Ten Maps) Adam Shoalts writes that "Explorers might make the first maps, but the final ones are usually made by armies." How is this statement true for the War of 1812? Are there other events from history where this perspective holds true?
OR Explain why the British navy turned its attention to the Arctic after the end of the Napoleonic Wars. What were its aims there? What role did the unknown regions of the Arctic play in the nineteenth-century view of the world?
- (The Making of Canada): Describe the role either Cuthbert Grant or James Sinclair played in the identity of the Métis Nation.
OR Define the two sides of the debate between Mary Ann Shadd and the Bibbs over the Refugee Home Society, and between Shadd and Frederick Douglass over the issue of emigration.

Term 2

Ancient History: Grades 10-12

- Christians Reading Classics: Choose Cicero, Caesar, Tacitus, Perpetua, Suetonius, or Marcus Aurelius, and explore how their writings can influence the modern-day church today.
- Christians Reading Classics: How should Christians go about reading pagan classics? How can reading these classics benefit spiritual formation?

World History: Grades 10-12

- Erebus: Life on exploration was never easy. Yet, many people chose to pursue lives of exploration. What were the many reasons for people to pursue this lifestyle? Use examples from different characters to support your answer.
- Erebus: Choose one person from the narrative who fascinated you and summarize his or her story.

Canadian History: Grades 11-12

- (The Making of Canada) Koabel highlights several instances where Canada has been the site of an intended or actual invasion or conflict meant to incite a larger battle (such as an Anglo-American war), or a change elsewhere in the world (such as the Fenian goal for an Irish uprising). Describe and compare two or more examples of these conflicts and consider what role they played, if any, in encouraging British North American colonies to join in Confederation.
OR
(The Unweaving) Describe the Red River Settlement, its variety of inhabitants, and the Métis way of life based on what you have read in the novel so far.
- (How Different It Was) Compare life today in your region of Canada to what life was like in that region in the nineteenth century.
OR
Imagine you have just arrived at a piece of uncleared prairie land that you have acquired and hope to farm. What are your priorities? What do you need to provide for yourself and your family immediately? How will you accomplish these tasks?

Term 3

Ancient History: Grades 10-12

- Early Christian Writings: Based on the writings of the early church fathers that you have read this term, what were some of the primary concerns of the early church? What are the most common themes? Are the concerns of the early church the same as or different than the concerns of the Christian church today?
- Early Christian Writings: Summarize one letter of your choosing. Then share how that letter gives us insight into the life of early Christians in the Roman Empire.

World History: Grades 10-12

- Blood and Iron: What were the events leading up to the establishment of the German Empire?
- Blood and Iron: Summarize Bismarck's Reich (1871-1888).

Canadian History: Grades 11-12

- (How Different It Was and Early Voices) Choose one reading from Early Voices and compare it to the historical survey of nineteenth-century Canadian society from How Different It Was. In what ways does the individual's account illustrate the elements of Canadian society that Goodspeed describes? Are there ways that it complicates or challenges Goodspeed's bird's-eye view of society as a whole?

OR

Choose two or more readings from Early Voices and compare the women's experiences of life in nineteenth-century Canada. What were their circumstances? What challenges did they face? What would they talk about if they could meet each other in person? You can write this as a creative dialogue if you prefer.

- (The Unweaving) Why did Cheryl Parisien choose The Unweaving as the title of the book? Consider all the mentions of weaving, sewing, other fabric arts, and the symbolism of the Métis sash (called the "saencheur flayshii," or arrow belt). Include references to specific events in the novel.

OR

Describe all you remember about the circumstances that led to the Red River Resistance of 1869, and its outcome, based on the events of the novel. You can write this as a historical report or from the perspective of one of the characters in the novel. You can be creative and write it as a letter, an interview, or another form of your choosing.
