About the Course

Get to know the diverse people who inhabited North America before the European explorers arrived. Learn how they used what was available around them for food, shelter, clothing, and protection. Observe their customs, hear their stories, and discover how they pass on their traditional knowledge today.

How To Teach

Prepare

- Read through the lesson and gather any materials or find any necessary links.
- If you have not already read the book, you may want to read the selected pages in advance.

Recap

- Connect to previous lessons by asking students to recall where they left off.
- If students have difficulty recalling, teachers might try showing them a picture from the reading, sharing something the teacher remembers, or prompting them with the first sentence of the last reading. This will often refresh their memory enough to allow them to recall.
- If students still cannot recall anything from the last reading, teachers might consider continuing anyway (with a shorter reading this time) or repeating the previous lesson, depending on the reading and the nature of the book.

Introduce

- Use a picture, map, or engaging question to pique the student's interest in the day's lesson.
- If necessary, you may talk about one or two unfamiliar words that will be crucial to understanding.

Read

- Read the day's passage out loud. When reading to pre-readers, point to the words as you read, even if it seems like they aren't paying attention.
- Move at the student's pace for the lesson time rather than a particular number of pages. It is vitally important that teachers not try to 'force feed' a student more than they can consume in one sitting.
- Students who have a difficult time sitting still or listening may benefit from a fidget of their choice, such as a piece of putty or clay or an afghan; flexible positioning, such as a wobble seat or inverted sitting; or sensory modulation, such as a weighted vest or blanket or adjustment of light, temperature, or sound.

Narrate

- Have students retell the passage orally.
- Alternatively, learners may use words, pictures, Legos, dolls, etc., to process and convey ideas in the manner most natural to them.
- Teachers may take turns to model.
- Narration is a complex skill requiring the coordination of several parts of the brain. If a student struggles to narrate in general, with a specific subject or book, or on one day but not others, then this is an opportunity to learn. Observe when they struggle with this or any other activity today. Notice facial expressions and body language; listen to what they say about why it is hard or how they feel about it. Take note of these observations for later, tell them that you see how hard they are working, and then offer whatever support they need to end on a positive note. If necessary, take a break for the day.

Discuss

- Give the student an opportunity to share thoughts on the lesson and any connections made.
- To stimulate discussion, you could ask them what they thought about the passage or ask an open-ended question.

Term 1

WEEK 1 10m History: Grade 1 (Canada) - Lesson 1

Turtle Island

Materials: The Honour Drum; globe, atlas, or map of Canada

→ INTRO

What do you know about your own family's history in Canada? Where did your ancestors come from? Where did they settle? What kinds of homes might they have lived in? Where in Canada do you live now?

→ LOCATE

Use a globe, atlas, or map as a visual aid as you discuss these questions.

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

p.2-3 "Look to the people" - "North American Culture."

- You can use Discussion Question #1 (p.3) in your discussion of the reading. We will return to the other Discussion Questions on this page in Term 3.

• ILLUSTRATE

Draw one of the kinds of dwellings from the reading using watercolour or another medium such as chalk, pastels, or crayons.

• EXTRA HELPING

Listen to a retelling of the Legend of Turtle Island for young children by Joel Agowissa, an Indigenous Support Worker with the Sudbury Catholic District School Board. This would make for a great activity during lunchtime or the afternoon.

WEEK 2 10m History: Grade 1 (Canada) - Lesson 2

Keeping Time: Moons

Materials: Thirteen Moons on Turtle's Back; the current month's calendar, showing the phases of the moon

→ INTRO

How many months are in a year? Can you say them all? Indigenous people had their way of marking time using what they observed in nature. One "moon" was the time from one full moon to the next. How many moons do you think there are in a year? Look at a calendar for this month. What day is it today? When is the next full moon? What do you think the moon will look like tonight?

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

1. Read the final page - "A note about this book" - as an introduction to the various ways the native people of North America used nature's signs to tell time.
2. Look at the image of the turtle's back on the opening page and count the scales together.
3. Read the first two sections from "Grandfather leaned over" - "keep us warm."

★ TEACHER NOTE

For the remainder of Term 1, lessons will include one or two poems from Thirteen Moons on Turtle's Back. As a fun challenge, encourage your students to guess what time of year the poem describes best.

• EXTRA HELPING

Make your own full moon turtle calendar.

WEEK 3 10m History: Grade 1 (Canada) - Lesson 3

Drums

Materials: Thirteen Moons; The Honour Drum

→ RECAP

What do you remember from what we read last time?

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

"Baby Bear Moon" (second moon): "Long ago" - "dream together."

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

p.4-5 "They come to the drum" - "worth and value."

- Questions #1-4 on p.5 can guide your discussion of the reading.

→ VIEW

∞ Video Link: First Nations traditional drums

★ TEACHER TIP

Students should also be encouraged to narrate using Legos, puppets, or by acting out the scene.
