

Grammar/Comp

About the Course

Students spend two lessons each week deepening their understanding of the parts of speech. During the other two lessons, students grow their writing skills with composition assignments from their books. Throughout the year, they explore literary concepts such as point of view and experiment with multiple forms of writing, including letters, descriptions, short accounts, and poetry.

This topic is included in the following course(s): Language Study: Grade 8

Grammar/Comp: Grade 8

These lessons, combined with the writing practice students continue to gain through written narrations, reinforce concepts and build fluency with various types of written forms.

NARRATION vs. COMPOSITION

As students begin to have more formal composition assignments in addition to written narrations, it's important to consider the difference between the two. Both narrations and compositions build students' skills in writing. The focus in narrations is on building written fluency by "telling back" the reading in written/typed form (and students are free to experiment with various ways to do this or not, as interested). The focus in composition assignments is to give them accountability and structure to practice specific skills in one or more types of writing.

Sometimes this means that a composition prompt assigns a specific type of "telling back" (such as retelling a reading as a poem, which a student may or may not have already experimented with of their own accord in their narrations). Additionally, compositions move beyond narration and variations of "telling back" to assignments which ask students to direct their attention to specific ideas within or across their readings (such as comparing and contrasting characters or texts) and other types of reflection which they previously have mainly practiced discussing orally or briefly in writing after reading and narrating in their lessons. Finally, especially as students enter high school, composition assignments merge with grammar assignments to help students understand the writing process more globally and consider aspects of style, editing, revision, research, and the ethics of communication.

Placement & Combining Tips

If your student did not do Paragraph Town last year, you should incorporate that book with the 8th-grade grammar book.

How To Teach Grammar

	Connect Link back to the previous lesson.
	Read Read the assigned pages and discuss new ideas. It is important for students to be able to talk about the concepts in their own words. The pictures and diagrams in the book can serve as a springboard for discussions about the grammar concepts.
	Practice Complete practice examples in the text and/or the practice book that accompany the lesson.
	Observe Observe examples of concepts in books being read and in daily life.

Term 1

WEEK 1 20m Grammar/Comp: Grade 8 - Lesson 1

→ NOTE TO STUDENTS

One purpose of composition lessons is to encourage you, the student, to dig deeper, reflect on your readings, explore the different ways words work, and learn how to ask good questions of yourself and your readings. Set your timer and use the whole time allotted for a composition assignment. If you finish an assignment with extra time, explore another perspective, ask further questions, or take a bit more time to see if any other thoughts come to mind. Alternatively, if you find yourself stuck, you may want to take a short break and come back later! Growth, not frustration, is the goal.

→ 15M COMPOSITION ASSIGNMENT #1 - SUMMARY/REFLECTION

Write a brief summary of a current event.

OR

Tell of a time when your desire for society was met. How did that experience impact/affect you?

→ 15M COMPOSITION ASSIGNMENT #2 - LETTER

Write a letter to a family member, friend, or imaginary character about one of your favorite books so far this year. Tell them what you think the book is about, why you like it so far, and then send the letter if you like!

★ TEACHER TIP

Make sure students are practicing typing skills and typing narrations and compositions regularly.

There are two designated lessons each week to work on the Composition prompts. All prompts will be listed in those lessons, so students can choose which prompts to work on.

→ DISCUSS

Why is it important to make sure that the pronoun's antecedent is clear? Why is it better to say "modify" instead of "describe" to explain what adjectives do? How do adjectives modify pronouns?
