How To Teach

Prepare

Plutarch: Teachers will find it helpful to preread the entire Life first, and then preread the day's passage before each lesson. Mark any passages that should be omitted due to content. (In Anne White's Plutarch Project books, the recommended source for this course, objectionable content has already been omitted.)

Current Events: Preview the news source for suitability.

Most other citizenship topics don't require additional prep.

Recap

Connect back to the previous lesson. (Optional for Current Events).

Introduce

For news sources, show students how to scan the headlines to get an overview first and then choose a story to read.

For Plutarch or other books: Use a picture, a map, or an engaging question to prepare students to receive the story as relevant. You may talk about one or two unfamiliar words that will be crucial to understanding. It is not necessary to cover all unfamiliar words.

Read

Read the selection assigned or the news story chosen. For rich, dense, or more challenging books such as Ourselves and Plutarch, it is a good idea to read them aloud. Have students keep an eye out for things to add to their Citizenship Notebook, Book of Centuries, and/or Commonplace book.

Narrate

Have the students narrate orally or in writing.

Discuss

Give students an opportunity to share their thoughts on the story and any connections made. For current events, look up where events occurred on a map and ask questions to help students discern the quality of the piece. (e.g., Are there sources cited? Is there an obvious bias? If so, what do other authors have to say on this subject? Are arguments supported by evidence? Is that evidence credible?) Consider reading an alternative perspective.

Citizenship Notebook

Have students record important ideas in their Citizenship Notebooks.

WEEK 2

25m Canadian Government: Grade 7 - Lesson 26

Federal Government

→ INTRO

Canada is divided into electoral districts, each one represented by a Member of Parliament (MP). These districts are also called ridings or constituencies. Because these areas are determined by population rather than area, some can be geographically very large while others are smaller.

Today, you are going to do some research about your local federal electoral district. By using the resources below, and through additional research with help from your parent or teacher, see if you can answer the following questions:

How many electoral districts are there in Canada?

What is the name of your local electoral district?

Can you find a map of it?

Who is your MP?

What party do they belong to?

Who were the other candidates in the most recent election?

What percentage of the vote did each candidate receive?

Can you find out more information about your MP from their own website?

WEEK 5

25m Canadian Government: Grade 7 - Lesson 29

Provincial Government

→ INTRO

Each province and territory has a legislative assembly, forming the provincial level of government. Each province and territory is divided into electoral districts with a representative to the legislative assembly from each district. The boundaries of your provincial electoral district may differ from the federal one. The provincial representative have different titles in different provinces/territories (e.g. Member of Provincial Parliament (MPP) in Ontario, Members of the National Assembly (MNA) in Quebec, and Members of the Legislative Assembly (MLA) in most other places). The leader of the party with the most seats becomes the premier.

Each province also has a Lieutenant Governor who, like the Governor General, is the representative of the King of Canada for each province and territory.

Today, you are going to do some research about your local provincial electoral district. By using the resources below, and through additional research with help from your parent or teacher, see if you can answer the following questions:

Who is the premier of your province/territory and what is their political party?

Term 3

What is the name of your local provincial electoral district?
 Can you find a map of it?
 Who is your representative, and what title do they have in your province/territory?
 What party do they belong to?
 When was the most recent election?
 Who were the other candidates in the most recent election?
 What percentage of the vote did each candidate receive?
 Can you find out more information about your representative from their own website?
 Who is your Lieutenant Governor and how long have they served in this role?

→ VIEW

Find the Elections website for your home province or territory (use search terms "election" and name of province/territory)

WEEK 6

25m Canadian Government: Grade 7 - Lesson 30

→ READ & NARRATE

Find a current events article about your provincial or territorial government. Narrate your chosen article either orally or written.

WEEK 7

25m Canadian Government: Grade 7 - Lesson 31

Local Government

→ INTRO

Today, you will look at local government. Local governments are a paradox, because we most often forget that they exist, while they often have the most direct impact on our daily lives. The head of the municipal government is usually called a mayor, but may have a different title in some places. Your municipality might be the same as your city, or, for smaller towns and rural areas, the municipality might be made up of several communities or a wider area. With the help of a parent or teacher look up the website for your municipality and try to answer the following questions:

What is the name of your municipality?
 Can you find a map of it?
 Who is the mayor (or other title) of your municipality?
 What other representatives make up your local government and what are their titles?
 When was the most recent election?
 Who were the other candidates in the most recent election?
 What percentage of the vote did each candidate receive?
 Can you find out more information about your mayor from their own website?
