How To Teach

Prepare

- Read through the lesson and gather any materials or find any necessary links.
- If you have not already read the book, you may want to read the selected pages in advance.

Recap

- Connect to previous lessons by asking students to recall where they left off.
- If students have difficulty recalling, teachers might try showing them a picture from the reading, sharing something the teacher remembers, or prompting them with the first sentence of the last reading. This will often refresh their memory enough to allow them to recall.
- If students still cannot recall anything from the last reading, teachers might consider continuing anyway (with a shorter reading this time) or repeating the previous lesson, depending on the reading and the nature of the book.

Introduce

- Use a picture, map, or engaging question to pique the student's interest in the day's lesson.
- If necessary, you may talk about one or two unfamiliar words that will be crucial to understanding.

Read

- Read the day's passage out loud. When reading to pre-readers, point to the words as you read, even if it seems like they aren't paying attention.
- Move at the student's pace for the lesson time rather than a particular number of pages. It is vitally important that teachers not try to 'force feed' a student more than they can consume in one sitting.
- Students who have a difficult time sitting still or listening may benefit from a fidget of their choice, such as a piece of putty or clay or an afghan; flexible positioning, such as a wobble seat or inverted sitting; or sensory modulation, such as a weighted vest or blanket or adjustment of light, temperature, or sound.

Narrate

- Have students retell the passage orally.
- Alternatively, learners may use words, pictures, Legos, dolls, etc., to process and convey ideas in the manner most natural to them.
- Teachers may take turns to model.
- Narration is a complex skill requiring the coordination of several parts of the brain. If a student struggles to narrate in general, with a specific subject or book, or on one day but not others, then this is an opportunity to learn. Observe when they struggle with this or any other activity today. Notice facial expressions and body language; listen to what they say about why it is hard or how they feel about it. Take note of these observations for later, tell them that you see how hard they are working, and then offer whatever support they need to end on a positive note. If necessary, take a break for the day.

Discuss

- Give the student an opportunity to share thoughts on the lesson and any connections made.
- To stimulate discussion, you could ask them what they thought about the passage or ask an open-ended question.

Term 1

WEEK 1 25m U.S. History: Grades 4-6 - Lesson 1

A Duck, A Dog, and a Deal

Materials: SeaMan: The Dog Who Explored The West With Lewis & Clark

→ PREP

1. Please note that a few of the chapters will be skipped for the sake of time. You can encourage your student to read those chapters outside of lesson time.
2. You may want to read the introduction to get some more background knowledge about the book.

→ INTRO

This year, we are studying the history of the United States from 1800-1900. President Thomas Jefferson acquired a large amount of land west of the Mississippi for $15 million through the Louisiana Purchase from France. He chose Meriwether Lewis to head an expedition to explore this area. Along with William Clark and a select group of men, a dog named Seaman joined the expedition. We learn about this dog in the journals of Lewis and Clark. For a long time, people thought the name of the dog was Scannon because it was hard to read the handwriting. Over the years more information about Seaman has been found in the journals and other sources. That is what makes the study of history interesting—historians continue to find more evidence that adds to a fuller understanding of the past. The author wrote this story based on Lewis and Clark's journals that were originally written with a quill pen!

→ LOCATE

At the beginning of the this book, Lewis is in Pittsburgh and then needs to meet Clark before heading to Camp Wood where they will spend the winter before they begin their expedition. Trace this route on the map. What rivers will he be traveling along to get to the camp? (Ohio and Mississippi)

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

Ch.1-beginning of Ch.2 p.1-11 "The huge black"- "lift their spirits."

- One of the goals of the expedition was to look for the Northwest Passage. Many thought there would be a direct water route across the continent that led to the Pacific Ocean. It was believed that this waterway could open a direct trade route between North America and Asia. Lewis and Clark were to find out and let President Jefferson know. Do you know if there is a direct water route from the Atlantic to the Pacific? You can look at a map to find out.

→ VIEW

Look at the entry from Lewis' journal on p.9. What do you notice about the spelling? Spelling changes over time. You will notice different spellings in the other entries as well.

• EXTRA HELPING

If you have time, this is an interesting video that talks about the Louisiana Purchase and the reasons for the expedition.

WEEK 4 25m U.S. History: Grades 4-6 - Lesson 4

Sioux Territory

📖 Materials: SeaMan: The Dog Who Explored The West With Lewis & Clark

PREP: We are skipping ch.4 for the sake of time. There will be a brief summary of it in the introduction.

→ RECAP

What did you read about last time?

→ INTRO

1. We are skipping ch. 4 but one important incident to note is that Sergeant Charles Floyd developed serious stomach pains. Lewis gave him different medications that he had brought with. However, Floyd died at the age of 22. They held a funeral service for him on a hill overlooking a river and named it "Sergeant Floyds Bluff." Many people now think he had appendicitis.

2. Trace the route down the Missouri river to the place where Sergeant Floyd died.

3. Another goal of the expedition was to establish relations with Native Americans. In today's reading Lewis and Clark will meet the Sioux who live in what is now South Dakota. This is what President Jefferson said to the explorers about the Sioux, "On that nation, we wish more particularly to make a friendly impression, because of their

 Materials: SeaMan: The Dog Who Explored The West With Lewis & Clark

PREP: We are skipping ch. 8 for the sake of time. Feel free to have your student read it on their own.

→ RECAP

What happened in the last chapter?

→ INTRO

1. We are skipping ch.8. In that chapter Seaman is back to normal and chased a 2000 pound buffalo through the campsite. The Corps of Discovery come to a fork in the Missouri river and needed to decide which way to go. They decided to take the southern river and came across many waterfalls that Lewis described as "the grandest sight I ever beheld." The water was falling over a cliff more than 80 feet high. They would have to portage (carry their boats overland) around the waterfalls. To lighten their load they stored some of their supplies in a cache or hiding place in the ground that would get on their way back.

2. Find the Great Falls on the map. Now go along the route until you get to Shoshone. The Corps of Discovery needed to find these people because they had something very valuable the explorers needed.
