Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6

☐ Read the preface and introduction of The Age of Fable for background information about myths and the rationale for reading them.

☐ Print "Age of Fable Glossary" for easy access during lessons. Find the link in Quick Links below.

Term Prep & Teacher Tips

Literature: Grades 5-6

The Extra Helping writing prompts in the lessons are used as composition prompts in grades 7-8, and they are only for students who want to dive deeper or experiment with writing at this level.

Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6

☐ The Age of Fable (Term 1) is best as a read-aloud or assigned as a stretch book for independent reading after the first few lessons are done together. Vocabulary may be difficult to understand, but it can be comprehended in context. Reference the glossary in Quick Links as needed. These stories reference imaginary creatures and ancient deities. It is a good idea to think ahead about how you might explain these characters if your students ask.

☐ Tales (Term 2) Older Folk Tales often include content such as drinking, smoking, abuse of others, etc. The teacher should preview the tales if this might be an issue for your home or classroom.

Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6

How To Teach

Prepare

- Read through the lesson and gather any materials or find any necessary links.
- If you have not already read the book, you may want to read the selected pages in advance, especially for Shakespeare lessons. It is helpful to read the play or a preview of it beforehand.
- Choose which books to have students read independently. See Planning and Prep notes for recommendations.

Recap

- Connect back to the previous lesson. Ask students to give a summary of what they remember and/or predict what might come next. (Full narration is not necessary.)
- If students have difficulty recalling, try showing an illustration, sharing something that you remember, or prompting them with the first sentence of the last reading. This will often refresh their memory enough to allow them to recall.
- If students still cannot recall anything from the last reading, then consider continuing anyway (with a shorter reading and/or using a combination of visual and audio support this time) or repeating the last lesson, depending on the reading and the nature of the book.

Introduce

- Use a picture, map, or engaging question to pique the student's interest in the day's lesson.
- If necessary, you may talk about one or two unfamiliar words that will be crucial to understanding.

Read

- Read the day's passage aloud or have students read independently. For Shakespeare, it is highly recommended that each student have their own copy of the play and that you read it aloud together or read along and underline/make notes while listening to the audio recording.
- Use supportive strategies and educational tools to reduce frustration and better engage the mind, as appropriate. These could include, but are not limited to, the use of eBooks, pictures, audio, read-aloud, buddy reading, colored reading strips, etc.
- Some students may benefit from having a notebook or piece of scrap paper available to externalize ideas by drawing, recording names, or making symbolic 'squiggle' notes.
- Students who have a difficult time sitting still or listening may benefit from: a fidget of their choice, such as a piece of putty or clay or an afghan; flexible positioning, such as a wobble seat or inverted sitting; or sensory modulation, such as a weighted vest or blanket or adjustment of light, temperature, or sound.
- Keep an eye out for things to add to your Book of Centuries, Citizenship Notebook, and Copywork book.

Narrate

- Have students retell the passage orally or in writing. If writing, encourage students to use the full remaining lesson time and include as much detail as they can remember. For Shakespeare or challenging books, it may be helpful to narrate more frequently and/or use props.

- Alternatively, learners may use words, pictures, Legos, dolls, etc., to process and convey ideas in the manner most natural to them.
- Students who used paper or a notebook to externalize may refer to these for support. Other students who need external support may benefit from looking at a map or picture from the book while narrating.
- Students who tend to use the same type of narration all the time can be encouraged to try another form of narration by first doing it together through play or discussion.
- Teachers may take turns to model.
- Narration is a complex skill that requires the coordination of several parts of the brain. If a student struggles to narrate in general, with a specific subject or book, or on one day but not others, then this is an opportunity to learn. Observe when they struggle with this or any other activity today; notice facial expressions and body language; listen to what they tell you about why it is hard or how they feel about it. Take note of these observations for later, tell them that you see how hard they are working, and then offer whatever support they need to end on a positive note or take a break for the day, if necessary.

Discuss

- Give the student an opportunity to share thoughts on the lesson and any connections made.
- To stimulate discussion, you can ask an open-ended question or use an included discussion question.

Term 2

WEEK 1 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 13

Materials: South American Jungle Tales

→ INTRO

For centuries, people shared stories out loud around fires, at celebrations, and before bed. By the 1800s, many people worried these beloved tales were disappearing as the world rapidly changed around them, so collectors began writing them down. The Brothers Grimm gathered folk tales across Germany, Hans Christian Andersen turned Danish traditions into fairy tales, and Andrew Lang collected stories from countries all over the world. In America, people began recording the stories of Indigenous communities and formerly enslaved people. Now it's your turn to explore these timeless tales and discover the stories people have treasured for generations. We'll start our journey in South America with a tale about a lazy bee.

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

"The Lazy Bee" - Read from beginning to "inside a hollow tree."

- What do you think will happen next?

→ MAP WORK

Find the continent of South America on a map or globe. Our first tale takes place in the country of Argentina. See if you can find Argentina on your map. (The story mentioned the city of Misiones. Misiones is actually not a city, but is one of the provinces of Argentina.)

★ TEACHER NOTE

The world of folk tales is vast. Explore extra helpings for other tales to include or substitute as desired. For instance, Favorite African Folk Tales by Nelson Mandela features many short tales that could easily be added to a lesson or enjoyed as a read-aloud.

Note that the final two lessons of the term are a Christmas tale. Feel free to swap around the order of the tales if needed to read that story closer to Christmas.

WEEK 2 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 14

Materials: South American Jungle Tales

→ RECAP

What happened to the little bee in the first part of the story?

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

"The Lazy Bee" - Read "And now the little bee" to the end of the story.

→ VIEW

∞ Image Link: Sensitive Plant

- What was the lesson the little bee learned? Do you agree?

WEEK 3 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 15

Materials: South American Jungle Tales

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

"The Giant Tortoise's Golden Rule"

- What was the moral or lesson in this story?

→ MAPWORK

Our last tale took place in the South American country of Argentina. This tale includes a man from Buenos Aires, which is the capital city of Argentina. See if you can find Buenos Aires on a map.

WEEK 4 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 16

Materials: South American Jungle Tales

→ READ, NARRATE & DISCUSS:

"How The Flamingos Got Their Stockings"

Term 2

- Many folk tales come up with funny pretend stories about how something came to be. If you wrote a tale like this, what would it be about?

→ MAPWORK

The author of South American Jungle Tales was from the country of Uruguay, also in South America. Can you find Uruguay on the map?

WEEK 5 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 17

Materials: Russian Fairy Tales

→ INTRO

Our next tales come from Russia. Russia is a vast land with a rich culture full of art, music, poetry, and storytelling stretching back hundreds of years. Its folk tales offer a window into a culture that loved nature, prized humility, and understood that life held both joy and hardship. Heroes in these stories are often humble and kind rather than powerful and proud, and magic is woven naturally into the everyday world. As you read, remember that you are not just enjoying a good story, but catching a glimpse of a way of life.

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

Tsar Sultan: Read from the beginning to "written in a tale."

- Does this fairy tale remind you of any others you have heard?

→ MAPWORK

Find Russia on a map. The land occupied by Russia has changed over many years. In the 1800's, Russia even owned the land that is now the state of Alaska. Russia sold Alaska to the United States in 1867, though it didn't become a state until almost 100 years later, in 1959.

WEEK 6 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 18

Materials: Russian Fairy Tales

→ RECAP

What has happened to the Tsaritsa and her son so far?

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

Tsar Sultan: Read "They entered it" to the end of the tale.

- What part of the tale was most surprising to you? Most interesting? Why?

• EXTRA HELPINGS

The George MacDonald Christmas Collection is a good choice if you'd like to substitute a tale during the Christmas season.

WEEK 7 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 19

Materials: Russian Fairy Tales

→ INTRO

Have you noticed that folk and fairy tales from different countries can feel really similar? There are a few reasons for this.

First, all people share the same feelings like love, fear, and hope, so it makes sense that stories all over the world are about the same kinds of things.

Second, people have always traveled, traded, and talked to each other. When they did, they shared their stories, too. A tale from one place could travel to another and get changed a little along the way.

Third, these tales were told out loud long before anyone wrote them down. As stories got passed from grandparent to parent to child, they slowly changed but kept the same basic ideas.

Term 2

Fourth, many of these tales have the same types of characters, such as a brave hero, a mean villain, or a wise helper. These feel familiar to everyone, no matter where they're from.

Finally, folk and fairy tales teach lessons like be honest, be kind, and be brave. Those are values every culture cares about! Our next tale about a prince and a frog has appeared in many forms around the world. See if you can find connections to other tales you've heard before.

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

"The Frog-Tsarevna" - Read from the beginning to "show thee to the people as my wife."

- Does this fairy tale remind you of any others you have heard?
- If you could ask a character in the story a question, which character would it be, and what would you ask?

WEEK 8 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 20

Materials: Russian Fairy Tales

→ RECAP

What do you think will happen when the frog appears at the Tsar's palace the next day?

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

"The Frog-Tsarevna" - Read "Weep no more" to the end of the story.

- What key values (such as bravery) did you notice in the story? Which character had this value?

★ TEACHER NOTE

There is a brief mention of a servant being beaten in the assigned reading.

WEEK 9 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 21

Materials: Kipling

→ INTRO

Rudyard Kipling's stories have delighted children for over a hundred years and inspired writers like C.S. Lewis and Tolkien. However, Kipling lived during the era of the British Empire and held attitudes toward other cultures that we recognize today as unfair and hurtful. This is something worth keeping in mind as you read his work, but thankfully, some of his stories are just interesting and fun. Today, we will read his tale of a hungry whale and a very clever sailor on the high seas.

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

∞ Link: "How the Whale Got His Throat"

- Did this story remind you of a Bible story you have heard before? If so, how are they alike and different?
- What character traits did the Mariner show that helped him get out of trouble?

★ TEACHER NOTE

Be sure to preview before handing children Kipling's other stories.

WEEK 10 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 22

Materials: "Papa's Christmas Story" (aka A Scot's Christmas Story) by George MacDonald

→ INTRO

George MacDonald was a Scottish storyteller (1823-1905). He loved fairy tales and fantasy, and even inspired C.S. Lewis, who wrote The Chronicles of Narnia! MacDonald was a devoted Christian, and his faith showed in his writing. He loved Christmas so much that he would carol through the streets with his children and sometimes invite over a hundred strangers into his home to celebrate! He wrote Christmas poems, songs, and stories to share that joy with others. Today you're going to read one of his Christmas stories called "Papa's Story" (sometimes called "A Scot's Christmas"). In it, a father tells his children a tale on Christmas Eve. As you read, think about what lessons might be hiding inside, just like the other tales we have read.

WEEK 1 25m Lit./Mythology: Grade 5-6 - Lesson 25

Materials: A Christmas Carol

→ INTRO

A Christmas Carol is a novella, which is longer than a short story but shorter than a novel. It was published on December 19, and the first edition sold out by Christmas Eve, making it an immediate success. Like much of Dickens' writing, the story is a commentary on the social problems of his era, such as poverty, child welfare, and poor working conditions.

→ READ, NARRATE, & DISCUSS

p.1-11 Beginning to "closed it with a bang."

- Why do you think Scrooge dislikes Christmas so much?
